OVERVIEW:

Cho Oyu (8188m) is the sixth-highest mountain in the world, located at a short distance to the west of Everest in the Khumbu region of Eastern Nepal along the Tibetan border.

There are no technical sections and the objective dangers are close to non-existent. Its relatively easy access makes it an attractive climb for someone with limited time, as it can be attempted in roughly 6 weeks round trip. Base Camp is accessible by jeep and it is possible to reach Kathmandu in a very long day from Base Camp.

Because of its ease of access, ABC is often crowded with a large number of expeditions. Just west of Cho Oyu is the Nangpa La, the old trade route between the Khumbu Sherpas and Tibet.

It was the third such peak climbed, and the first climbed by a light expedition in autumn. Herbert Tichy, Joseph Jöchler, and Sherpa Pasang Dawa Lama of an Austrian expedition first climbed the mountain on October 19, 1954, via the northwest ridge.

ROUTE CAMPS

Chinese basecamp

You will go by jeep to the Chinese base camp and you will be staying 2 nights for acclimatization and trek to BC.

Basecamp (4,900m/ 16,075ft)

As per our itinerary, you will reach Mt. Cho-Oyu Chinese base camp (4,900m) between the days 10 to 12 days. You will be acclimatized for some days and further trek to advanced basecamp. It will be a pleasant stay with the team. A puja ceremony will be made for the good luck before we head to the upper camps. Seven Summit Treks has the best base camp set up with a big dining, kitchen, toilet, communication & member tent.

Advance Basecamp (5,700m/18,700ft)

ABC lies at an elevation of 5700m/18700ft. BC will be set up full of comfortable dining, kitchen, and member tents with scenic views of beautiful peaks surrounding Mt. Cho Oyu itself. This camp will be the base until the expedition is over. You will be spending about a month as your second home. There will be another team for climbing too.

Camp I (6,400m/20,997ft)

The route to Camp I will take about 4 to 6 hours. We will be walking up the main glacier and snow field and reach Camp I. The camp will be set up in a safe area by our experienced climbing guides/Sherpa.

Camp II (7,100m/23294ft)

Camp II lies at an altitude of 7,100m before we head up to the high altitude, once our climbing rope is fixed to the up route then we approach camp II in a group together. It will take about 6/7 hours. The snow slopes will be 30-40 degrees. For acclimation, you will round up 2 times. 1st time go up there and back to ABC and again go camping II while you go for the summit push. The camp II field is a big ground.

Camp III (7,500m/24,606ft)

Camp III lies at an altitude of 7,500m. Camp III is just below the yellow band. The yellow band is a rock cliff that we must cross to reach Summit. It will take about 2 hours to cross the yellow band. Sometimes the rock can be covered by snow. You won't sleep at Camp III so your summit push will begin from Camp III. Most of the climbers will leave Camp III at late night or early morning for a summit attempt and people start to use oxygen from Camp III.

Summit (8,188m/26,863ft)

With the best weather forecast, once we leave Camp III for the summit, it will take about 6-9 hours of climbing to reach the summit. It's a long walk, challenging, and adventurous. Most of the summit will be in the early morning around 7 to 10 am and back to camp II the same day after the summit of Mt. Cho Oyu. Which will take some hours to descend. Rope fixing up to the summit is the major duty of our climbing Sherpa so we highly admire our Sherpa for fixing ropes, breaking trails, and making all the effort to get the group to the summit of Mt. Cho-Oyu.
